BURKE CHARACTERIZES COLLEGE'S FUTURE: COMPETITION AND CREATIVITY

In his annual address to the faculty Tuesday afternoon, President Joseph C. Burke characterized the future of the college in two words — competition and creativity. He proposed a new planning process for the next five years which "must match our internal choices with our external circumstances — our internal desires with external demands." Burke set three goals for the college to achieve in the next five years: to become and be perceived by internal and external groups as the best comprehensive college in SUNY; to become and be perceived by internal and external groups as an attractive alternative to the SUNY university centers; to become and be perceived by internal and external groups as a high quality, low cost alternative to private colleges and universities in the state. To achieve these goals, Burke said, members of the college community must be aware of their competition and be willing to deal with the future creatively. "If we cannot achieve or afford a qualitative advantage for a particular program," he said, "we should change its focus or cut it. If we cannot be better, we better be different. If we cannot be better or different, we cannot afford it."

The complete text of Burke's speech to the faculty is contained in a special insert in this week's Weekly.

SIXTEEN FACULTY MEMBERS PROMOTED; SIX BECOME FULL PROFESSORS

Sixteen faculty members received promotions effective this fall and six of those faculty members were promoted to full professor. They are Dr. Malcolm Fairweather, Dr. Peter Gore, Dr. John Malanchuk, William Robbins, Dr. Douglas Skopp, and Dr. Ann Tracy.

Fairweather was appointed to the college faculty as an instructor of geography in 1971, and received subsequent promotions to assistant professor and associate professor. He has served as chairperson of that department since 1975 and this fall assumes the position of director of the Center for Earth and Environmental Sciences. Fairweather was one of nine professors nationwide to receive a 1982 Distinguished Teaching Award from the National Council for Geographic Education. He has written numerous articles and has authored or co-authored three New York State atlases.

Gore, a member of the college's environmental science faculty since 1976, is well known as a rural sociologist. He was a member of a 4-person team selected by the U.S. State Department to evaluate the land reform program in El Salvador last December. This spring, Gore received a grant from the International Crop Consortium to develop pictographic symbols for the safe use of pesticides in Latin America. He was also instrumental in writing a proposal funded this spring by Rotary International to create a small farmer training and demonstration center in Ecuador.

Malanchuk, a member of the environmental science faculty since 1972, received both his bachelor's and master's degrees from Plattsburgh State. In his years at the college, Malanchuk has been awarded ten grants and contracts totalling over $227,000. He is presently doing research on the effects of toxic substances on the environment, the beneficial uses of fly ash in agro-ecosystems, and acid rain.

Robbins, a member of the art department since 1968, spent the 1982-83 academic year on sabbatic leave in Iowa and Virginia working on landscape painting. Robbins has exhibited his drawings and paintings in numerous shows on the Plattsburgh campus and in other galleries around the country. He has also been very active in college and department service and committee work.

Skopp joined the faculty of the history department in 1972 as an assistant professor. He chaired that department from 1981 through 1982 and assumed that position again in June, following a year as acting associate vice president for academic affairs. Skopp has received several SUNY research grants, the most recent of which funded a project entitled "Orienting Freshmen to the Liberal Arts" and led to the writing of "The Plattsburgh Legacy," a monograph sent to all incoming freshmen this summer. Skopp has published numerous articles on education in Germany.

Tracy joined the faculty of the English department as an instructor in 1970, and has served as chairperson of that department since 1981. She is the author of Patterns of Fear in the Gothic Novel, 1790-1830 and The Gothic Novel, 1790-1830: Plot Summaries and Index to Motifs. Tracy has also written a horror novel, titled Winter Hunger, which is being reviewed for publication.

Promoted to associate professor were Dr. David Bedworth, health, physical education, and recreation; Dr. William Culver, political science; Dr. Leonard Fontana, sociology; Dr. Carol Leonard, history; Dr. John McCormick, computer science; Kathryn Stuart, music, and Helen Waterhouse, nursing.

In the library, Dennis Kimmage and Topsy Smalley were promoted to associate librarian and Cynthia Whitacre was promoted to senior assistant librarian.

NEH GRANTS CENTER FOR STUDY OF CANADA $158,000 FOR SUMMER INSTITUTES

The Center for the Study of Canada has received a two-year $158,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to fund two summer French-Canadian institutes for language and culture. Dr. Jeanne Kissner, author of the grant proposal and co-project director (with Dr. Edwin Hamblet, professor of French) explained that the institutes are designed to familiarize secondary French teachers with the unique aspects of the language and culture of French Canada, and also to provide them with advanced language training. Thirty-five teachers will be selected to participate in each seminar, and both the teachers and their school principals must guarantee inclusion of French Canadian material in the following year's curriculum.

Kissner said that the institutes would be the first of their kind in this country, and added the NEH had funded the full amount requested in the proposal.

CHASE, FAIRWEATHER, PROBERT NAMED CENTER DIRECTORS

Three of Plattsburgh State's Centers have new directors this fall. They are: Dr. Marilyn Chase, Center for Human Resources; Dr. Malcolm Fairweather, Center for Earth and Environmental Science; and Richard Probert, Center for Art, Music, and Theatre.

Chase, a member of the home economics department faculty since 1967 was promoted to associate professor in 1978. She has served as chairperson of that department since 1980. Last fall, following the experimental formation of the Center for Human Services, Chase was named acting director for its first year. That center also has a new name and will now be known as the Center for Human Resources.

Probert

Fairweather has been a member of the college's geography department since 1971 and this year was promoted to professor (see related story). That department, which Fairweather has chaired since 1975, is now part of the Center for Earth and Environmental Science.

Probert, who assumed his duties in July, comes to Plattsburgh from New Concord, Ohio, where he chaired the Department of Creative and Performing Arts at Muskingum College. He received his musical training at Wilkes College and Indiana University, and has also studied at the Peabody Conservatory, the University of Oregon, the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto and the Aspen Music Festival. Probert is a concert baritone and devotes his vocal performance to art song, oratorio, and chamber chorus singing. He is also active as a conductor and director of staged musical works.

NEW COMPUTERS ADDED TO COLLEGE RESOURCES

Approximately 50 microcomputers are being purchased by the college this fall for use by computer science students. Dr. Jerome Supple, vice president for academic affairs, said the microcomputers, primarily Apple IIe's, Timex Sinclairs, and Commodore Vic 20's, will help ease the student load on the college's main computer system. In addition to the microcomputers, the college will also have a new minicomputer, thanks to a gift from the Digital Equipment Company. Digital operates a grant program which annually donates computer equipment to various schools. This year, largely through the efforts of Plattsburgh alumnus Roy Pannucci, a sales representative for that company, Digital agreed to donate computer equipment worth approximately $40,000 to the college. This equipment will be used primarily by upper division computer science students.

TRUAX TO SUNY CENTRAL; EDWARDS ACTING ADMISSIONS DIRECTOR

David Truax, director of admissions for the last ten years, resigned this summer to accept the position of assistant vice chancellor for access services with the State University's Central Administration. In his new position, Truax will supervise the university-wide Application Processing Center and the offices of School-College Relations and Financial Aid Services.

Assistant to the President Jan Edwards has been named to replace Truax for one year, during which time a search for a permanent director of admissions will be conducted.

ALUMNI, FACULTY, STUDENT EXHIBITIONS OPEN GALLERY SEASON

Works by alumni, faculty, and students are currently being exhibited in the various gallery spaces on campus. The Myers Fine Arts Gallery is opening its exhibition year with a display of works by graduates of Plattsburgh's art programs, which includes photography, ceramics, painting, drawing, sculpture, prints and jewelry. Artists included in the exhibition are Susan Fehring '81, Wallace Haley, Lorelei Hamm '78, Lee Kazanas '74, Cheri Cross '74, Andrea Knight '79, Diane Levesque '80, Kathleen Laucius '80, Rebecca Maurello '79, Joseph Russ '72, Glen Shultis '79, Eric Silverman '76, John Studwell '83, Barbara Walker '72, Judy Woods, and Pern Vancamp '80.

On exhibition in the Rockwell Kent Gallery Alcove and Lounge are new works by faculty members Edgar Barton, Robin Brown, Bill Crosby, Joe Hennessy, Tom Holland, Bill Klock, Rick Mikkelsen, Rosemary Olmsted, Bill Robbins, and Roger Williams.

In addition to these major exhibitions, faculty-student works completed during the summer are on display in the Myers Fine Arts Lobby; two Manet prints purchased by the gallery and sixteen graphics donated to the college by Robert T. Booth and Christopher Booth and their families may be viewed in the Rockwell Kent Gallery's Treasure Room; and a stained glass installation is on display in the Kent Gallery Lounge.

SEARCH UNDERWAY FOR PERSONNEL DIRECTOR

A national search is being conducted for a personnel director following this summer's resignation by C. Victor Ovalle. Over fifty candidates have filed applications for the position. Derek Allan, chairperson of the search committee, said this week that there were many highly qualified people among the applicants. The committee is presently reviewing credentials of twenty-one semifinalists prior to selecting candidates to be invited for interviews.

REDCAY SCHOLARSHIPS, APPRENTICESHIPS AWARDED TO STUDENTS

An increasing number of Plattsburgh students with interest in the behavioral sciences are benefitting from the generous and continuing commitment to promoting undergraduate academic excellence through the Drs. Lillian and Edward Redcay Endowment Fund. In addition to the long standing Redcay Excellence Awards usually given to seniors, scholarships and apprenticeships have now been established at the freshman, sophomore, and junior/senior levels. A Redcay College Foundation Scholarship equivalent to the cost of full-tuition has been granted to Ms. Andrea Meldrum, a freshman who will major in psychology. A Sophomore Scholarship has been awarded to Mr. Timothy Pavlick, also a psychology major. Four junior/senior Redcay Apprenticeships have been awarded for the coming year. Each apprenticeship will involve the student in research activity working closely with a faculty member. The student winners and their faculty sponsor are: Timothy Strong, majoring in sociology working with Dr. Eleanor Stoller, Chris Karambelas and Keith Waldman, psychology majors, conducting research in conjunction with Dr. Bill Gaeddert; and Kathy Dwyer, a behavioral science major, working with Dr. Roy Malpass. It is anticipated that additional students will be supported next year.

CHANGES IN REQUIREMENTS NOTED BY FINANCIAL AID OFFICE

All students who expect to receive funds through the Pell Grant, National Direct Student Loans, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant, College Work-Study or the Guaranteed Student Bank Loan must have a signed statement on file in the Financial Aid Office certifying that they do or do not have to register with Selective Service. This requirement is applicable to females as well as males and is the result of a Supreme Court nullification of an injunction issued by a Minnesota judge respective to complying with the Selective Service registration regulation.

Students who are eligible for the state TAP and Regents Scholarship awards must meet minimum academic standards to maintain their eligibility. Awards are jeopardized if students achieve less than a 2.0 cumulative average and complete less than 12 credits per semester. Full details are available in the Financial Aid Office.

CAMPUS OFFICES RELOCATE DURING THE SUMMER — A GUIDE TO WHO'S WHERE

During the summer, a number of offices on campus have moved to new quarters. The Office of Career/Life Planning and Placement has moved from the College to the sixth floor of the Kehoe Administration Building. The College Auxiliary Services staff has moved from Kehoe to a new suite of offices in Algonquin Hall. The Special Services Project is now located in the former Career/Life Planning and Placement suite on the first floor of the College Center. The Office of Public Safety (security) has moved from the Service Building to the Student Health Center. Derek Allan, facilities director, and his staff have moved to the Service Building. The Payroll office has moved to Allan's former suite on the ninth floor of the Kehoe Building. Offices in the Accounting Office have been renovated, but remain in the same location.

President Burke's Address to Faculty:

COMPETITION, CREATIVITY TO GUIDE PLATTSBURGH STATE'S FUTURE

Our future will force a drastic shift in our planning. Today, I propose not a new Five Year Plan but a new Planning Process for the next five years. The new process must match our internal choices with our external circumstances — our internal desires with external demands. It must supply direction, not detail, for circumstances will change and so must our course. It should decentralize decision making and ensure commitment and creativity through consultation at every level of the College. A single purpose should direct this planning process. We should seek no less than a special status for this College within the SUNY System and all of higher education in New York State. We must develop a systematic strategy so that our College can achieve three goals in the next five years.

GOAL ONE: To become and be perceived by internal and external groups as the best Comprehensive College in State University.

GOAL TWO: To become and be perceived by internal and external groups as an attractive alternative to the large and complex University Centers of State University.

GOAL THREE: To become and be perceived by internal and external groups as a high quality, low cost alternative to the private colleges and universities in New York State.

I believe that these three goals are both attractive and achievable. I know that we need a new planning strategy if our College is to succeed in the difficult future that faces all of higher education.

I can characterize our future in two words — COMPETITION and CREATIVITY. Our external environment in the next five years will produce fierce competition from public and private colleges and universities in New York State for both resources and enrollments. External competition will challenge our internal creativity. The pressure of external competition and the need for internal creativity demand a drastic change in our planning and decision making. Past practices can no longer guarantee future success for our College or for any institution of higher education.

In the Sixties, incrementalism dominated decision making on our Campus and throughout academia. Growth in resources and enrollments made everything desirable appear doable. It stimulated individual creativity at the cost of campus coordination. Colleges and universities, including our own, became all things to all people, for rising resources permitted a favorable response to nearly every internal want or external whim. They added a myriad of programs, activities, and services without considering their cost or coordination. Incrementalism fragmented the college curriculum and fractured the Campus Community. In a period when the curricula included everything that anyone wanted, the Campus Community had little to talk about together and less to decide collectively. Incrementalism isolated individuals from their colleagues. Institutions and their departments became less, rather than synergistically more than the sum totals of the individual talents of the faculty and staff. Since growth was incremental and uncoordinated, parts of institutions dominated the whole. Rising resources and enrollments also isolated institutions from their environment and from external competition.

In the Seventies, declining resources dictated an end to incrementalism and the beginning of centralized decision making in colleges and universities. Budget cuts diverted the focus of campus decisions from internal desires to external demands. Difficult deadlines demanded swift and systematic institutional responses that prevented the full participation of faculty, staff, and students in the development of campus plans. Governance groups, long accustomed to dealing with growth, found planning for drastic declines in programs and personnel difficult and distasteful. The onslaught of external pressures moved the center of power up the hierarchical ladder on Campus and all too often shifted the real authority off campus to external agencies. Decision making was centralized at the cost of creativity at every level of the College.

Our College cannot meet the new challenge of competition in the next five years without the creativity of everyone on this Campus. Our future requires a new approach to planning and decision making that combines our internal creativity with our external circumstances, that permits both coordination and consultation, and provides clear directions for our College while allowing course corrections that satisfy changing conditions. This planning process must decentralize decision making, for competition will demand the creativity and commitment of every individual and group at our College.

This new planning process requires the adoption of a few goals that can direct all of our decisions in the next five years. The goals must be few, for it is quality, not quantity, that must direct our course. They must provide direction not detail, for details should change but the directions must not. Too many goals mean too much detail to suit a changing environment and too much dissent from our campus community. The fewer the goals, the more important each becomes.

The three goals are worth repeating, for I propose that they should direct all of our decisions at the department, the division, and the College level for the next five years:

GOAL ONE: To become and be perceived by both internal and external groups as the best comprehensive College in State University.

GOAL TWO: To become and be perceived by both internal and external groups as an attractive alternative to the large and complex University Centers of State University.

GOAL THREE: To become and be perceived by both internal and external groups as a high quality, low cost, alternative to the private colleges and universities in New York State.

These three goals meet the future challenge of competition and creativity. They match external problems with internal possibilities. They recognize that a favorable assessment of any organization, like charity, should always begin at home with its own members. If our own students, faculty, and staff do not reflect a favorable attitude toward our College, we can hardly expect a positive response from outside groups. At the same time, these goals concede that important external publics may not share our internal perceptions of the performance of our institution. Outsiders often judge our College on false or incomplete information.

In addition, they naturally appraise our College in comparison with other SUNY campuses.

Before developing a strategy to achieve these three goals, we must realistically assess both internal and external opinions of the strengths and weaknesses of our College in relation to competing SUNY campuses. Our Offices of Institutional Research and Admissions will identify our strongest competitors at both the institutional and the department levels. They will also survey the attitudes of internal and external groups toward our College in comparison with competing schools. These studies will include an analysis of entire institutions and an assessment of individual programs, activities and services. We must discover as soon as possible the perceptions of current and potential students of our relative ranking among the Senior Arts and Science Colleges in State University and their attitudes toward our College in comparison with the University Centers.

If relative quality is hard to evaluate, demonstrating to external groups a distinctive position among competing institutions is even more difficult to establish. Every college or university has the problem of demonstrating its distinctiveness to prospective students and supporters. The problem is doubly difficult for this Campus, because of the size of New York State and the SUNY System. The great distances in this State between our Campus and its potential publics tend to diffuse the impression of our distinctiveness. And the number of units in State University makes it difficult for any campus to set itself apart. With thirteen Arts and Science Colleges in the System, it is especially difficult for our type of institution to show its individuality to external groups.

Distinctiveness can derive from a difference in the focus, the quality, or the quantity of programs. During the Seventies, Plattsburgh's broad range of programs constituted a distinct advantage. Few of the Arts and Science Colleges in State University could match our mix of academic majors, for many of the Senior Colleges had emphasized a single academic area. For example, Potsdam stressed music; Cortland, physical education; and New Paltz, art. Plattsburgh's success in attracting enrollments in the Seventies flowed in large measure from its range of programs. It offered popular programs in Accounting, Business, Computer Science, Mass Media, and Nursing. None of the other Arts and Science Colleges provided all of these preferred majors. The decision of the Central Administration to allow nearly every Arts and Science College in the late seventies and early eighties to bolster enrollments by introducing such programs has clearly eroded Plattsburgh's distinctiveness and its programmatic advantage.

This development has altered dramatically our relative position among the SUNY Colleges as perceived by prospective students and external publics. In the past, we could establish our distinctiveness by merely enumerating our programs. In the future, we must demonstrate to external audiences that our programs are better than, or attractively different from, those at the other colleges and universities. A quantitative difference is easy to establish. A qualitative distinction is hard to demonstrate. We must not only prove our qualitative advantage as a total institution but must substantiate the special superiority of each of our individual programs, activities, and services. We can decide not to offer a particular program, activity, or service; but if we do provide it, its qualitative difference from those at competing colleges and universities must be clear.

Distinctiveness can also flow from a difference in focus. A few colleges and universities have radically different focuses for their entire institutions. For example, St. John's College in Maryland centers its curriculum on the great books; and Evergreen College in Washington concentrates its programs on environmental themes. Such a restricted institutional focus is viable for only a few schools, for its appeal is limited to a small segment of potential students. In addition, our mission as a comprehensive university college dictates a wide range of programs. However, distinctiveness through some special focus at the institutional and the programmatic level is essential for every college or university.

Restrained resources mean that no school — including Yale or Harvard — can afford to offer every program. Nor can any institution be the best in everything, if it seeks to supply every major and every subdiscipline. Such a school would be broke, not better. In times of restrained resources, the quality of the offerings of both institutions and individual departments is often inversely related to their quality. Thus each institution and its departments must decide what they can best provide and how those offerings can be better focused. Those decisions will result partly from a careful analysis of internal strengths in comparison with those of competing institutions and partly from the needs of prospective students.

Different departments must choose different focuses depending on their current resources and capabilities in comparison with those in competing programs at other schools. Different circumstances will dictate different choices. Some of our academic departments have sufficient faculty and funds to challenge comprehensively the largest departments in SUNY Colleges and Universities. Others with fewer faculty and restrained resources must demonstrate their quality and distinction by a difference in focus from departments at competing institutions. Some small departments may earn special distinction through their creative contributions to liberal learning and cultural life on campus. Whatever its current size, each department in considering its appropriate focus should remember that distinction cannot be bought in the eighties by additional resources and that distinction depends not on the size of the program but the quality of the performance.

To make these choices our College and each of our departments will need to know a great deal more about our competitors and our potential students. We need to know the segments of students that our College and each of its departments can best serve. And how we can serve them better than competing schools. In short, we need a strategy for seeking quality, distinction, and focus at every level of this College that will earn us a special status in the SUNY System.

The surprise is that we seem to know so little about our biggest competitors, the Senior Colleges in SUNY, and only slightly more about the University Centers. I have often asked faculty in different departments to name a strong academic department in their discipline at another school. Often the department named was at a research university in another state. When an individual mentioned a New York State school, it was usually a private college or university, and seldom a SUNY unit. References to a SUNY Campus were invariably a University Center, and almost never an Arts and Science College. Can it be that we, like so many of our current and prospective students, suffer from the private is good and public is bad syndrome or the size syndrome that sees bigger as better?

It is foolhardy to ignore our strongest competitors. We must begin immediately the systematic study of the strengths and weaknesses of SUNY Schools at the institutional and the departmental levels and develop the habit of seeking ways to enhance our competitive position in relation to them. First, we must establish our superiority over the other Arts and Science Colleges. Second, we must attain the status of an attractive alternative to the University Centers. Finally, we must push for the position of a high quality, low cost alternative to private colleges and universities in New York State.

These three goals should direct every decision and guide every action at the College and in each of its component units. When a new plan, program, or project is proposed, its proponents should publicly and persuasively answer the question of how its introduction will help to establish our superiority over the Arts and Science Colleges and make our Campus a more attractive alternative to the University Centers and to private colleges and universities in New York State. When a department or a division desires to add a new position or fill an existing vacancy, it should demonstrate how this action will assist that unit and the College in pursuing these goals. When a Department or Division recommends a new appointment or a reappointment, it should show how the talents and expertise of that professor or professional can help to substantiate our special status in SUNY and in relation to private schools in the State.

These three goals should also guide decisions on budget reductions and reallocations. We should plan budget cuts to minimize their effect on our competitive position and should propose reallocations that maximize our comparative advantages. All internal and external evaluations of programs, activities, or services should solicit comments on their relative merits in comparison with those provided by competing institutions in New York State. If we cannot achieve or afford a qualitative advantage for a particular program, we should change its focus or cut it. If we cannot be better, we better be different. If we cannot be better or different, we cannot afford it. These three statements should become our slogans for success in the next five years.

Of course, merely posing the questions will not automatically provide the answers. What constitutes the best college or the best program? What characteristics can make a college or a program distinctively different? The questions are difficult, because the answers involve an assessment of quality. The value of posing the questions is not that we will always agree on the answers but that all of us accept the validity of the questions. The process of responding to the questions will perhaps prove more valuable than the answers produced. Searching for those elusive qualities that characterize the "best" will help us to become better. One thing is certain. Quality can never be judged in a vacuum. The quality of any organization can only be tested by comparison with similar organizations. Our obvious points of comparison are the SUNY Campuses.

During the coming academic year, each department, office, and division at our College will review the quality and focus of its programs, activities, and services in relation to its strongest competitors in SUNY. Each unit must then develop a five year strategy for gaining a distinctive position within the University System. The strategy for each of these units should also state how it will contribute to the common cause of making other components and our entire College the best in SUNY. No component can succeed unless the College succeeds. Success in the difficult times ahead will require a coordinated, common effort of every component of our College.

Success means satisfying the legitimate needs of the students and the society that this College can best serve. Such needs do not fall neatly into disciplinary or departmental divisions. Many of these needs will require a combined response from several departments or offices or even from the College as a whole. For example, society will undoubtedly demand more and better science and mathematics teachers for its schools. A qualitative and distinctive response from our College must combine the creativity of our faculty in Education, Science, and Mathematics. Society desires better writing skills from college graduates, whatever their academic major or career field. Our College should respond by adopting a "Writing-Across-the-Curriculum Program" that demonstrates the commitment of all our faculty to ensuring that all Plattsburgh graduates write well. Our College might well take the same approach to the societal demand for computer literacy. These and many other societal needs are much too complex and comprehensive to be left to a single department.

When developing strategies to meet societal needs and to become the best of the SUNY Schools, we should remember that students take two-thirds of their courses outside their major field and spend most of the time outside the classroom. The quality and distinctiveness of our General Education Curriculum can distinguish this College from competing campuses. Our commitment to general education should say to external groups that our faculty cares as much for liberal learning as it does for specialized training. Such a statement, if we mean it as well as say it, could set our faculty apart from professors at most schools who desire to teach only majors in their disciplines.

The quality of living as well as learning on campus should distinguish this College. Everything we do is important — nothing is insignificant. We should seek to be the best in all of our campus operations from accounting to advising, from cleaning to counseling, from registration to residences. We should strive for distinction in everything we do and should develop strategies to move our entire institution and each of its units in that direction.

If our College and its Departments and Divisions are to find their appropriate future, we must use the expertise of our professors and professionals. Academia appears to follow an unwritten law that faculty expertise is valued and utilized in direct proportion to its distance from the home campus. We must repeal this law on this campus, for it would be folly for our College to try to find its future without using the expertise of our faculty. Indeed, we should pay more attention to professional specialties when we appoint or elect faculty committees.

The future will undoubtedly bring societal changes that will require institutional responses. We should attempt to anticipate these changes by asking faculty experts in a variety of fields to project periodically societal changes and their institutional consequences. Such a Futures Committee could help us identify problems and possibilities for the total College. Academic departments and centers should also examine regularly potential trends in their fields that might provide new and attractive directions for their programs. The College should disseminate these discoveries throughout the campus.

Our College will need all of the help it can get from its faculty, for our future will undoubtedly present difficult problems. Budgets and enrollments will continue as our most pressing concerns and will clearly constrain our choices. The current Budget for 1983-84 is bad; and all indications suggest that our prospects for 1984-85 will not be better. The positions restored by the Legislature for this Fiscal Year happily prevented a massive dismissal of personnel but they only postponed a serious reduction in our total staff. The College had to eliminate 20 positions by April 1 of this year and must vacate an additional 20 to 25 positions by the end of next March. This cut of nearly six percent of our total staff is the largest reduction ever experienced by this College in a single year. In addition, our funding for expenses and equipment falls far short of the amount required to support adequately our current range of programs, activities, and services. Unfortunately, the problem seems permanent, not temporary, for it is likely to continue into the foreseeable future.

In the Seventies and the early Eighties, we tried to perform the impossible task of doing much more with much less. In the next five years, we must strive to do better with less, which will undoubtedly mean that we must attempt to do less. In times of restrained resources, the quality and distinction of an organization will flow as much, perhaps even more, from what it decides not to do as from what it decides to do.

Enrollment, both its quantity and quality, is currently a compelling concern and will become even more crucial in the next five years. The quantitative enrollment problem has been widely discussed and well documented. Between 1983 and 1994, New York State will experience nearly a forty percent decline in its college-age population of 18 to 22 year olds — the source of most full-time enrollments. Since New York already has one of the highest College going rates in the Country, it is unlikely that a higher percent of the 18 to 22 year olds will decide to enroll in higher education. This demographic decline will deeply affect enrollments in colleges, such as our own, whose location in sparsely populated areas naturally limits the potential pool of part-time students.

The qualitative enrollment problem is no less real, if not as well recognized. A few statistics can reveal the size of this problem. In fall 1981, only 59.1% of all the college freshmen in New York State scored 400 or more on the verbal section of the scholastic aptitude test — as compared to 73.6% of our freshmen. And only 72% of the New York freshmen compiled a mathematics score of 400 or more — in contrast to 91% of our freshmen. Our resolve to maintain admissions standards will mean that we must recruit the great majority of our freshmen from a diminishing pool of the high school seniors.

Clearly, the competition for students, especially the brightest and the best, will become ever more fierce as the available pool declines dramatically in the next five years. Though our College continues to receive annually nearly nine thousand applications and our admission standards remain strong, the quantity and quality of our applicant pool makes it an attractive target for recruitment by the best public and private colleges and universities in New York State. The best schools are courting our applicants. Our prospective students are carefully comparing competing institutions before deciding to enroll. They file an average of 3.4 applications to SUNY Schools; and many of them also apply to one or more private colleges and universities. Our College has long been a favorite choice for transfer students, especially graduates from two-year colleges. We enroll a higher percentage of transfers than any other SUNY College or University. Now, public and private colleges and universities throughout the State are actively competing for transfers.

We must develop a Statewide reputation for quality, if we are to maintain the quality and the quantity of our applicants. We must cultivate our advantages so that our Campus becomes so attractive to accepted applicants that they automatically enroll at our College. We must also remember that recruiting new freshmen and transfers is merely one side of enrollments. Retaining our current students, who are also being recruited by other institutions, is no less important. We must constantly re-recruit our current students. Their initial decision to enroll on our Campus does not automatically imply the determination to graduate from our College. We recruit quality students and only the quality of learning and life on our campus will retain them. Both recruitment and retention will require creative responses from our total College and each of its components, if we are to maintain the quality and the quantity of our enrollments in the next five years. Since our College is clearly in competition with the best schools for the best students, we must strive during the next five years to become better or distinctively different than our competitors.

Competition is not alien to academia. Neither is it distasteful nor demeaning to scholars who have long demanded it from themselves and their students. Competition constitutes the spirit of scholarship — the drive to become the best and the desire to be judged in comparison with the best. This spirit of scholarship should inspire institutions as well as individuals to the highest level of performance. It is in this spirit that we should compete with the public and private colleges and universities in New York State. We should challenge them as institutions and in every program, activity, or service that we decide to offer. We should seek no less than a special status within SUNY and within all of higher education in this State.

Today, I have proposed not a plan for success but a process for achieving success. We should remember that a process, though essential, is only a beginning and not an end. This process must produce a product that is qualitatively better and distinctively different. We have the potential at this College to produce such a product, but only time will tell if we have the will to become the best. We demand the best from our students. Surely, we can demand no less from ourselves.

CLASS OF 1982 FARING WELL IN JOB MARKET

Results of a survey of the Class of 1982 conducted by the Office of Career/Life Planning and Placement are much better than expected, according to Patrick Lennahan, the director of that office. The survey, to which 706 members of the class (58%) responded, indicated that 93.7% of those who were available for employment had found it. Of those employed, 84% are working on a full-time basis and 16% on a part-time basis. The figure of 93.7% is the highest in recent years for Plattsburgh State graduates. "We think that's remarkable considering that the country has been going through its worst recession and has the highest unemployment rate since just after World War II," Lennahan said. Asked if their job was related to their major field of study, 72% of those responding said yes. As might be expected, the rate was higher among professional studies graduates (82%) than among arts and science majors (61%). The survey also inquired about job satisfaction and 79% indicated they were satisfied with their work.

The survey also provided good news about starting salaries. While the average salary of all employed graduates (full- and part-time) was $13,317, starting salaries ranged up to $50,000. "It's not unusual to hear of graduates starting out at $25,000 or more, in some fields," Lennahan commented.

The highest average starting salaries were commanded by graduates who majored in computer science: business ($22,167), computer science: scientific ($21,429), nursing ($17,897), and business/psychology ($17,500).

Thirty-two percent of the Class of 1982 said they were continuing their education, 14% of those on a full-time basis. They are enrolled in master's degree programs, professional degree programs, doctoral programs, employer training programs, non-credit courses, and others.

The survey inquired as to whether extra-academic experiences such as internships or summer jobs helped them in finding their job. Sixty-six percent said yes.

More detailed information about the survey is available in the Office of Career/Life Planning and Placement.

FIFTY STUDENTS TO CALL 8,000 ALUMNI DURING 1983 PHONOTHON

Fifty student volunteers will call approximately 8,000 Plattsburgh State alumni within the next five weeks during the 1983 phonothon segment of the Annual Alumni Fund Drive. Mal Lavery, director of alumni affairs, said this week that five teams of ten students each will make telephone calls four nights a week beginning September 19 and continuing until approximately October 7. Alumni will be asked to contribute to this year's fund drive, the proceeds of which are used entirely for student scholarships on campus.

Lavery said this year's phonothon goal is $25,000 and added that $45,000 has already been contributed to the 1983 alumni campaign. That $45,000 includes a $20,000 endowment fund established by Ruth Clark Huntington, a 1921 alumnus of the Plattsburgh Normal School. "We are looking forward to an excellent year with the phonothon," Lavery said. "The response from our alumni was outstanding during the first two years and we anticipate that it will continue to increase."

PARENTS' WEEKEND SET FOR SEPTEMBER 23-25

The first Parents' Weekend in several years and the most extensive ever planned will be held on campus from September 23-25. Mal Lavery, who is coordinating the event, said that the weekend was planned to provide an opportunity for parents to become more familiar with Plattsburgh State. A wide variety of events has been scheduled for the weekend.

On Friday, parents are welcome to visit classes and/or meet with faculty members (students must make appointments ahead of time). Following dinner in one of the campus dining halls, parents may attend a concert by the College Jazz Ensemble, visit the Alumni Exhibition in the Myers Fine Arts Gallery and enjoy coffee house entertainment in the Point. On Saturday morning, parents may tour the campus and participate in one of several seminars on a wide variety of topics, such as career opportunities, pressures and the freshman experience, financial aid, study abroad, college community relations and the arts at Plattsburgh. Seminars will also be held in the afternoon and will include a repeat of some of the morning's sessions as well as additional topics, such as computer games, North Country folklore, artist Rockwell Kent, and cooperative education. The college's soccer teams, tennis teams and cross country teams are all scheduled for home competition on Saturday. A banquet hosted by President Joseph C. Burke and a Coffee House Sing Along will conclude Saturday's activities. Reservations must be made for several of these events and a complete schedule is available in the Alumni Affairs Office or the Campus Life Office.

Members of the Parents' Weekend Committee, in addition to Lavery, are Patty Bentley, Linda Blaize, Cheryl Hogle, Bill Laundry, Norm Law, Richard Probert, and Tom Swan.

Laura Long has been hired as a technical assistant and Ray McKinney is the new research assistant/accountant in the Technical Assistance Center.

PAUL GANDEL APPOINTED HEAD OF MEDIA SERVICES

Paul Gandel, an instructor in the School of Information Studies at Syracuse University for the past three years, has been appointed to the position of Head of Media Services. In that position, Gandel will be responsible for the provision of classroom media services and operation of the rear screen projection area. His office is located in the Feinberg Library.

Gandel received a bachelor's degree and a master of fine arts degree in photography from SUNY Buffalo and a master's degree in library science from the University of Wisconsin. He is presently enrolled in the Information Transfer doctoral program at Syracuse University. He served as coordinator of the Research Center at the Visual Studies Workshop in Rochester for several years, and has also been active in statistical and video consulting work.

COORDINATED STUDENT EMPLOYMENT SYSTEM IMPLEMENTED

Students looking for on- or off-campus jobs may find it easier this year since the formation of a coordinated student employment system. The program is open to all students, regardless of financial need. The on-campus portion of the system is being coordinated by Laura Dominy of the Financial Aid Office. Dominy said that all on-campus job openings, including positions with temporary services, Research Foundation, College Auxiliary Services, and Marriott, will be listed in a central location. She said that the total annual payroll for temporary service alone amounts to well over $300,000, so there is opportunity on campus for students to find work. The bulletin boards listing the on-campus positions will be located in the College Center across the hall from the Outreach Center beginning next week, but listings may be found this week in the Financial Aid Office.

Barbara Hebert has been hired to locate and develop temporary and part-time positions in the community, and a number of local businesses have already expressed an interest in the program. Students interested in off-campus employment may contact Hebert at 564-2450 or visit her office which is located in the Field Based Learning Office on the tenth floor of the Kehoe Building.

ALUMNI MAKING A DIFFERENCE IN STUDENT RECRUITMENT

Plattsburgh's alumni are making a big difference in student recruitment, according to a report prepared this summer by former Admissions Director David Truax. The report said that, during the 1982-83 recruitment season, 16 alumni represented the college at 19 College Night programs and contacted directly 1,050 prospective students. Fourteen of those alumni represented Plattsburgh without the assistance of an admissions staff member. During 1982-83, alumni handled 25% of the college night programs in which Plattsburgh participated. "Most importantly," Truax wrote, "this represents 1,050 prospective students from over 80 different high schools the college would not otherwise have contacted."

In addition, 66 alumni recruiters in 20 different counties around the state sent congratulatory letters to students accepted at the college. As of May 31, the last date on which calculations were made, 32% of accepted students who had received letters from alumni had paid deposits for the fall semester, compared with 24% of accepted students who did not receive the letters. Truax said, "This seems to be a very significant difference in light of the fact that the alumni letter is the only communication that differs between the two groups."

TWENTY-TWO FACULTY MEMBERS ON LEAVE THIS FALL

Twenty-two faculty members will be on leave this fall, some of them for the semester and others for the entire year. Faculty members on leave for the year include: Dr. Carrie Harris and Dr. Padmini Gulati, Center for Human Resources; Dr. Stewart Denenberg and Ann Fleury, computer science; Dr. Suzann Buckley, history; Dr. Patrick Fleury, mathematics; Dr. Sitaram Shastry, physics; Dr. Naomi McCormick and Dr. Marion Smith, psychology; Dr. Eleanor Stoller, sociology; William Kelting, Center for Business and Economics; Dr. Robert Cancelosi, Center for Art, Music and Theatre; and Joan Lynch and N. Margaret Wineman, nursing.

Faculty members on leave for the fall semester include: Dr. Donald Haight, Center for Human Resources; Dr. Ben Morreale, history; Dr. Merton Stancliff, anthropology; Dr. Prem Gandhi, Center for Business and Economics; Dr. James Dawson, Center for Earth and Environmental Science; Dr. Peter Corodimas, English; Dr. John Gottschall, political science; and Dr. J. Stallard Waterhouse, biology.

STUDENT VOTER REGISTRATION REACHES 1,500

As of Friday afternoon, at least 1,500 Plattsburgh State students had registered to vote as the result of an intensive voter registration drive being conducted by the Student Association. SA President Tom Swan, coordinator of the voter registration drive, said this week that he hopes to have 3,000 students registered for the 1983 elections.

The voter registration drive continues on Thursday and Friday with tables set up from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. in the College Center lobby and in the Algonquin and Clinton Dining Hall lobbies from 4 to 7 p.m.

NURSING RESEARCH DAY TO BE HELD NEXT WEEK

The first Nursing Research Day to be sponsored by the campus chapter of Sigma Theta Tau, the nursing honorary society, will be held on Friday, September 16 in the Cardinal Lounge. The Research Day is designed to provide registered nurses with an overview of their role in the research process and an understanding of the application of research to clinical nursing. Jacqueline Fawcett, associate professor of nursing at the University of Pennsylvania, is the keynote speaker and will discuss her research in obstetrical nursing. Fawcett has contributed many articles to nursing journals and recently authored a textbook, titled Analysis and Evaluation of Conceptual Models of Nursing.

Other speakers and their topics include: Dr. S. Joy Winkler, "The Relationship Between Health Behavior and Health Status in Women Attending a Primary Health Care Nursing Clinic"; Dr. Lynne Golonka, "Time and Therapeutic Intervention"; Janet Brown, "An Instrument for Assessing Comparative Role Functions of Nurses"; Helen Matula, "The Role of Personality in the Perception of Recent Life Changes"; and Rachel Pollow, "Nurse Educators' Local-Cosmopolitan Orientations and Attitudes Toward a Projected Clinical Practice Mandate." More information is available from Marilyn Morton or Lynn Nichols in the nursing department.

CHORAL ARTS SOCIETY TO BE FORMED ON CAMPUS

A new organization to support and foster the performance of master choral works is being formed on campus. Richard Probert, director of the Center for Art, Music and Theatre, said that the Choral Arts Society of Northeastern New York will hold rehearsals each Monday evening from 7 to 9 p.m. in room 324 of the Myers Fine Arts Building. Membership is open to anyone over 17 or with special permission of the conductor. No formal auditions will be held, but prospective members will be asked to provide a description of previous choral experience. Probert, who will conduct the chorale, said the group's first concert will be held on December 4 and will be a performance of Handel's "Messiah." More information is available in the Center office in the Myers Fine Arts Building (564-2180).

FRED HOOPER TO COACH SOCCER CARDS

A former assistant coach at Ithaca College has been named varsity soccer coach for the Cardinals. Fred Hooper, an Elizabethtown, N.Y. native, was chosen over several other highly qualified applicants to succeed Uwe Meyer, who resigned last fall. Hooper was most recently assistant varsity coach and head junior varsity coach at Ithaca College. He has been director of World Cup Soccer Schools in Louisiana and Mississippi, a soccer instructor at Cortland State and an instructor of United States Soccer Federation "D" and "E" licensed courses. He coached two Oneonta soccer teams which toured Belgium in 1980 and England in 1982. He also coached the region's 1981 Empire State soccer team. In addition, Hooper coached varsity high school soccer for three years at Schenectady Central School. Hooper's playing career encompassed several years on the Elizabethtown High School team, and four years at Cortland State.

SPORTS UPDATE: FALL SPORTS SEASONS KICK OFF THIS WEEK

Soccer and tennis players and cross country runners open their fall seasons this week, while the women's volleyball team enters competition next week. The men's soccer team begins an ambitious season with a small core of veterans and a competitive schedule. All-State second team selection Donovan Scott leads the offense with speed and finesse that opponents will find tough to handle. Seniors Ted Sofianos, Tom Ryan and Dom Szambowski will balance the attack, with Szambowski floating between goalie and forward.

The women's soccer team lost only two starters last year and has added some talented, although inexperienced, freshmen, according to coach Sue Viscomi, who expects to have another good season. The women's season opens on Saturday at the Plymouth State Tourney in Massachusetts.

Coach Dick Fischer's men's and women's cross country teams open Saturday at the St. Michael's Invitational Meet. Fischer commented that both teams lost runners to graduation last year and will have to depend on new people to fill the gaps.

Plattsburgh State's men's tennis squad travels to Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute for a Saturday match and then begins home play on Sept. 13 against Potsdam State on the Macdonough Hall courts. The PSUC women's team opens the season against Potsdam State Sept. 10 on the Field House courts.

UPWARD BOUND FUNDED FOR THREE MORE YEARS

The College's Upward Bound program, under the direction of Peter Luguri, has been awarded an $812,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Education to fund three more years of operation. This grant cycle will bring the program through its twentieth year of existence and its funding to over $3,000,000. Thomas Moran, assistant vice president for student affairs, commented that this latest grant proposal was rated very highly by the reviewers, receiving marks of 95, 97, and 98 out of possible 100's.

Luguri explained that the Upward Bound program, which was instituted on the Plattsburgh campus in 1966, is designed to provide the motivation and skills necessary for educationally and economically disadvantaged high school students to succeed in a post-secondary education setting. Participants spend six weeks on campus during the summer taking high school and college courses. During the school year, Upward Bound counselors visit these students in their home schools and provide them with tutoring and counseling services as needed.

As of last spring, Luguri said, approximately 840 local high school students had participated in the program. A study showed that 71% of those students had gone on to post-secondary education of some form, and 65% had either graduated or were currently still attending. Presently, there are 110 students from 22 schools in Clinton, Essex, and Franklin counties enrolled in the Upward Bound Program.

COORDINATOR OF SCIENCE AND SOCIETY PROGRAM ANNOUNCES RETIREMENT

Dr. Scott Worrall, coordinator and professor of the science and society program, has announced his retirement, effective August 31. Worrall joined the college faculty in 1962 as an associate professor of chemistry, but with an interest in teaching courses which considered the impact of scientific and technological advances on society and vice versa. He originated and developed the science and society program and by the late 1960's was teaching that course fulltime. He was promoted to full professor in 1969.

Worrall earned his bachelor's degree in chemistry from Haverford College, and his master's degree and doctorate, also in chemistry, from Harvard University. Prior to joining the faculty at Plattsburgh, he taught at Trinity College in Hartford, Connecticut for eight years and worked as a research chemist for the Monsanto Chemical Corporation for four years.

CENTER FOR ART, MUSIC AND THEATRE OPENS SEMESTER WITH CONVOCATION

The Center for Art, Music and Theatre opened the fall semester last week with a convocation for all faculty, majors, minors and other students interested in the arts. Richard Probert, director of the Center, explained that the convocation was planned in order to provide an opportunity for students and faculty alike to become acquainted with the various programs in the center. Over 90 students and faculty were in attendance. The convocation opened with a presentation by Mary Koniz, SA vice president for the arts and double major in music and theatre, of the center's programs from a student's perspective. Faculty members Tom Holland, Kathryn Stuart, and Dan Watermeier introduced faculty from the three center departments and discussed each program. Gallery Director Ed Brohel discussed the use of the Myers Fine Arts Gallery and the Kent Gallery. The program concluded with an address by Probert on a definition for art and its application in education and society. Probert said he hopes to make the faculty-sponsored convocation an annual event. Plans are also underway for a student organized and sponsored convocation to begin the spring semester.

COOPERATIVE EDUCATION PROGRAM FUNDED FOR SECOND YEAR

The Cooperative Education program, supported by a Title VIII Grant, has been approved for funding for its second year. Program Director Ann Hasting said this week that the co-op education office will receive $85,000 to support its activities during the 1983-84 academic year. In addition, approval has been received to purchase a microcomputer to establish an information management system for the program.

Hasting also gave a brief review of the program's initial year. Since the office opened last fall, over 4,000 contacts have been made with potential co-op employers through direct mailings, telephone contacts and employer recruitment visits. To date, more than 150 placements have been established for Plattsburgh State students. Student interest in and response to the program has been positive and enthusiastic, Hasting said. Approximately 375 students have made inquiries and applied to the program. To date, approximately 118 students have been placed with co-op employers and additional placements are pending. Students representing 34 different majors have been placed with over 53 different employers.

The cooperative education program places students in paid positions with various employers, allowing them to gain professional work experience in conjunction with classroom learning and career goals.

MORE THAN 500 PARENTS EXPECTED ON CAMPUS THIS WEEKEND

More than 500 parents are expected to visit campus this weekend for the most extensive Parents' Weekend ever planned at Plattsburgh State. Mal Lavery, director of alumni affairs and coordinator of the event, said that registrations for the various scheduled events were still coming in. Most of those expected to attend are parents of freshmen, although a large number of upperclassmen have also indicated their parents will participate in the weekend's events.

Several of the seminars offered on Saturday morning and afternoon have already been over-subscribed. The most popular one, according to a registration count on Monday, is "Pressures and the Freshman Experience," a panel discussion by two freshmen, a resident assistant, and two freshman seminar faculty.

Five of the college's intercollegiate athletic teams will be in competition at home during the weekend, so parents of those athletes may see their sons or daughters in action. In addition, parents may visit the alumni art exhibition, hear the college jazz ensemble in concert, attend a president's reception and banquet, and enjoy coffeehouse entertainment in the Point.

DR. MARILYN CHASE NAMED TO NATIONAL CONSUMER PANEL

Dr. Marilyn Chase, director of the Center for Human Resources, has been named to the nine-member Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel (MACAP). MACAP is an independent, industry-sponsored panel of professionals from various fields such as law, education and engineering who review individual consumer problems with major appliances that were not resolved at the local dealer/service agency or manufacturer level. After careful study of all aspects of a complaint, the panel makes a recommendation to the manufacturer and the consumer for fair settlement of the problem. The panel also studies industry practices and advises major appliance manufacturers of ways to improve its service to consumers.

Chase has been a member of the Plattsburgh State faculty since 1967 and has taught courses on consumer and family economics, housing, household equipment and management principles and theories.

STUDENT RECRUITMENT UNDERWAY FOR FALL 1984

Student recruitment for next fall got underway this week as the admissions staff went "on the road." Acting Director of Admissions Jan Edwards said the staff will spend a combined total of 25 weeks in travel between now and November 14. During those weeks, they will visit every county in the state, making contacts with potential freshmen and transfer students at high schools, two-year colleges and college fair events.

In addition to the admissions counselors and the Educational Opportunity Program staff, alumni are very involved in student recruitment. "We hope to again have about 12 alumni attending college-fair events," Edwards said. "Our admissions staff just cannot attend every one, and these alumni recruiters allow us to make contact with many more students than we could on our own." Some faculty and staff members have also indicated a willingness to participate in college fairs in the North Country region.

Students, too, assist in the recruitment effort, Edwards said. "Right now, our tour guide program is getting started," she said, "and a large number of students will be involved in that area." She also explained that later in the semester, a group of student peer recruiters will be trained to visit their own high schools and high schools in and near their hometowns during vacation periods to talk to students about Plattsburgh State.

Again this year, Edwards said, recruitment efforts will be heavily targeted at the high yield areas around the state, including Long Island, the Capital District, and the North Country.

— WELCOME, PARENTS! —

FACULTY SENATE APPROVES POLICIES ON RESEARCH, INTERNSHIPS, GRADES

The Faculty Senate has approved three policy statements in recent meetings. At the Senate's final meeting last May, the following statement of philosophy on research at the college was passed: "The State University of New York at Plattsburgh believes that every faculty member has an obligation to contribute something, out of his/her peculiar knowledge and talents, to the body of learning by which he or she has been nourished. Contributions may vary by discipline, but they should be in some way made public in a context broader than the PSUC campus or the local community. An active intellect requires conversations with its peers, however widespread, and scholarship of any sort should be available to other scholars for their profit and criticism. That PSUC is an institution with a primary emphasis on teaching does not absolve its faculty of scholarly obligations. Indeed, teaching and creativity should be mutually enriching activities: ideally a teacher engaged in scholarly explorations makes classes more stimulating, and a scholar engaged in teaching benefits from insights derived in the classroom or laboratory."

At that same meeting, the Senate passed an all-college internship policy statement, which addressed issues of internship requirements, admissions standards, credit, evaluation, learning contracts, grading and faculty and agency responsibilities. The new policy will be included in the 1983-84 Faculty Handbook. Both of these policies have received final approval from President Joseph C. Burke.

At the Senate's first 1983-84 meeting last week, members voted in favor of a resolution to allow each program at the college, subject to the approval of the appropriate curriculum committee and dean, to require students in its major to achieve minimum grade standards for specific courses (introductory or otherwise) designated by the department. This policy has been transmitted to the president for approval.

COHEN, STUDENT, AND ALUMNI RETURN FROM 8-WEEK DIG IN BELIZE

Dr. Mark Cohen, professor of anthropology, has returned to campus after spending eight weeks in Malcal Tipu, Belize on an excavation funded by the National Science Foundation. Accompanying Cohen on his expedition were Sharron Bennett '83, a graduate student at the college, Sherry Riley '79, Eileen Denué '77 and Jeff Kelly '83. Cohen's research is centered on sixteenth century Mayan Indians, specifically in the areas of nutrition and disease. The group brought back 120 additional skeletons, bringing the number currently in Cohen's laboratory to nearly 200. Also excavated were numerous artifacts and articles of jewelry which will be exhibited on campus next month.

According to Cohen, ten students in a Seminar on Skeletal Analysis are currently reassembling the skeletons and classifying and labeling the bones. When that is done, the students will begin to work on identifying particular characteristics, such as sex, age and apparent diseases. The skeletons are officially on loan from the government of Belize for an as yet unspecified time.

INSTITUTE OF CONTEMPORARY STUDIES FORMED ON CAMPUS

An Institute of Contemporary Studies has been formed on campus by a group of faculty interested in international programs. The group plans to create new activities and proposals for the expansion of current programs, with an emphasis on both research and foreign affairs. Institute Director Carol Leonard explained that the group will focus on two aspects of international study, contemporary American policy from the perspective of foreign observers and inter-regional conflict as it relates to American interest. Through the establishment of an institutional structure, Leonard explained, the group plans to coordinate independent studies which draw upon interdisciplinary method; expand support services for seminars in which students and faculty plan joint publications; assist in the applications of scholars who wish to retool in international affairs, and invite visiting scholars to spend lengthy periods of time at Plattsburgh sharing the results of their research and working in projects jointly with faculty and students. Anyone wishing to participate in the institute should contact Leonard or the other members of the advisory board. They are: Richard Beach, William Culver, Ray Doyle, Fouad El Taher, Patricia Higgins, Miles Martin, or John Moravek.

TALKING HEADS TO APPEAR IN CONCERT NEXT WEEK

The PSUC Concert Committee will present The Talking Heads, Friday, September 30 at 8:00 p.m. in the Field House.

The band will begin its East Coast tour in Plattsburgh. The tour is in support of "Speaking in Tongues," the group's critically acclaimed album which is currently listed in Billboard magazine's top 15 albums.

There will be no opening act for the show which will begin right at 8:00 p.m. Tickets are $6.50 for SA members, $9.50 for the general public and are available at the College Center desk, Cahill's in the Pyramid Mall and at the News Depot on U.S. Avenue.

FINANCIAL AID OFFICE ANNOUNCES CHANGE IN EMERGENCY LOANS, INTEREST RATES

Effective this week changes in two areas of finance will streamline and reduce program costs, according to Suzanne Sokolowski, Financial Aid Director.

Students will now complete Emergency Loan applications at the Student Association Office on the second floor of the College Center. This innovation will mean a borrower need only make two stops in the loan process: (1) the SA Office for application processing and loan repayment and (2) the CAS Office in Algonquin for check pick-up.

Applications will be available in the SA Office between 9:00 and 11:00 a.m. and checks can be picked up from the CAS Office between 3:00 and 4:15 p.m.

The interest rate charged for the Guaranteed Student Bank Loan will decrease from 9% to 8% for periods of enrollments beginning September 13, 1983 or later. This means that students who have never borrowed through the GSL program before will be eligible for 8% interest loans for the Spring '84 semester and after.

SPORTS UPDATE; WOMEN'S SOCCER TEAM NOTCHES TWO WINS

Plattsburgh State's women's soccer team allowed only two shots on goal in its first two games of the season, defeating Lyndon State, 6-0, Sept. 15 and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, 5-0, Sept. 17. ## UNITED WAY CAMPAIGN PART OF STATE EMPLOYEES FEDERATED APPEAL

State employees in Clinton County will see a big difference in this year's United Way Campaign. Formerly a separate campaign to solicit contributions for a list of sixteen local agencies, this year's United Way fund drive will be part of a State Employees Federated Appeal. James King, director of the Technical Assistance Center, is in charge of the campus portion of the fund drive. King explained that the State Employees Federated Appeal (SEFA) enlarges the number of organizations which may receive funds through the drive. In addition to the 16 United Way member agencies, nine national health agencies, under the umbrella of Clinton County National Health Agencies, and fourteen international agencies (International Services Agencies) will be listed as contribution recipients. King explained that state employees may choose to designate gifts to any of the three umbrella agencies or to any specific agency. Undesignated gifts will go to the United Way until a total of $24,000 is received. Thereafter, undesignated gifts will be divided on a percentage basis, with the United Way receiving 78%, Clinton County National Health Agencies 15% and International Services Agencies 7%. State employees covered by the agreement include those at Plattsburgh State, the Departments of Correction, Taxation, Labor and Transportation, and the State Police.

The on-campus goal for this year has been set at $25,000. King said the campus drive will be underway very soon.

BOOK BY DR. STUART VOSS ACCEPTED FOR PUBLICATION

Notable Family Networks in Modern Latin America, 1750-1900, a book co-authored by Dr. Stuart Voss, Diana Balmori and Miles Wortman, has been accepted by the University of Chicago Press for publication in the fall of 1984. Voss, who is an associate professor of Latin American Studies, explained that the book is a synthesis of the growing number of family or family-related studies that have been written in the past two decades, constituting a new field in Latin American historiography. Case studies done by the authors of family networks in northwest Mexico, Guatemala and Buenos Aires, Argentina, along with illustrations from a large number of regional and individual family studies, are used to demonstrate the degree to which networks of notable family dominated life and society in nineteenth century Latin America.

Voss, a member of the Plattsburgh State faculty since 1972, is currently serving as coordinator of the Latin American Studies program. He is the author of Periphery and Progress in Nineteenth Century Mexico: Sonora and Sinaloa, 1810-1877, which was published in 1982.

Chisholm, a graduate of Brooklyn College and Columbia, is the author of two books, Unbought and Unbossed (1970) and The Good Fight (1973). She was a presidential candidate in the Democratic primaries in 1980 and has long been an articulate spokeswoman for education, child welfare, women's issues and civil rights.

On October 4, the Women's Studies Program will sponsor a campus visit by Alice Kessler-Harris, professor of history at Hofstra University. She will speak at the Women's Studies Forum at 12:15 and will also meet with members of the campus and local community during the day. ## TAC WINS PROJECT-OF-THE-YEAR AWARD

Plattsburgh State's Technical Assistance Center has been awarded first place in a competition conducted by the National Association of Management and Technical Assistance Centers for the "Project-of-the-Year." TAC, working in cooperation with the New York State Department of Commerce and the Jefferson County Industrial Development Agency, was responsible for preventing the closing of a New York Air Brake facility that employed 1,400 persons. TAC Director Jim King said that the management of the New York Air Brake facility, located in Watertown, planned to close that antiquated facility and relocate. However, the three concerned agencies prevailed upon the company's executives to defer the closing while a plan could be developed to save the jobs. TAC undertook a major study on constructing new facilities and prepared a plan that involved a $6.5 million Urban Development Action Grant, supplemented by Industrial Revenue Bonds and a tax abatement on the new facilities. A new long-term labor contract was also negotiated. The total new investment by New York Air Brake will be in excess of $35,000,000. In addition to saving 1,400 jobs the project resulted in 400 additional persons being employed.

The National Association of Management and Technical Assistance Centers is an organization composed of 41 university-affiliated centers that provide assistance to communities and businesses for economic development, technology transfer and management assistance.

STANDARDS RAISED FOR ENTRY INTO STUDENT TEACHING

Education majors planning to student teach will have to have an overall grade point average of 2.5 to be accepted, according to a policy just adopted by the Center for Teacher Education. Dr. George Maybury, director of the Center, explained that anyone entering the teacher education program after June 1, 1984, either as an incoming freshman or transfer student, or through an internal change of major, will be affected by this policy. Maybury added that Plattsburgh is the first SUNY college to adopt a policy this stringent, and commented, "Students need a gpa of 2.0 to qualify for graduation, but we feel that teachers should be even better."

Dean of Professional Studies Nick Troisi said, "We're always interested in raising the standards in our education program. Although we've been considering this move for quite a while, we feel it is certainly a timely step considering the contents of the various national commission reports on education."

STUDENTS GIVEN EQUAL REPRESENTATION ON COLLEGE AUXILIARY SERVICES BOARD

Students will have fifty percent of the votes on the College Auxiliary Services (CAS) Board in the future as a result of a by-law amendment approved by that body last week. An amendment to the CAS by-laws increases the board's membership from 14 to 16 and provides for those seats to be filled by students. The other members of the board will include three administrators, three faculty members, one member of the College Council, and one alumni representative.

CAS is responsible for the establishment, operation, management and promotion of educationally related services for the benefit of the college community. CAS operates food service facilities, vending services, the campus store, and miscellaneous student services.

ALUMNI AND STUDENTS TO JOIN IN HOMECOMING CELEBRATION NEXT WEEKEND

Alumni and students alike will participate in next weekend's Homecoming festivities. Alumni Affairs Director Mal Lavery said approximately 500 alumni are expected to return to the campus for the occasion, including about a dozen from the Plattsburgh Normal School Class of 1923, who will celebrate their 60th year class reunion. All alumni may participate in a "Welcome Back Buffet" on Friday evening, a president's reception, hosted by President and Mrs. Joseph Burke, and a dinner dance with music by the Dutchess Community College Jazz Ensemble, on Saturday evening.

From the students' point of view "That's Hollywood" is the weekend's theme, according to Linda Blaize, SA vice president for activities and weekend committee chairperson. Blaize said students will elect a king and queen early in the week, enjoy a California Beach Party in the Ballroom on Thursday, march in a parade with more than 20 floats and several marching bands on Saturday, and hold a semi-formal dance Saturday evening at the Field House. More information about either alumni or student activities is available at the Alumni Office (564-2090) or the SA Office (564-2026).

'FACULTY' FORMED FOR UNDECLARED MAJORS

A special "faculty" has been formed for undeclared majors, according to Tom Corigliano, coordinator of academic advisement. Corigliano explained that 24 faculty and professional staff members have volunteered to become part of that group. Members of the group will each have approximately 10-12 undeclared students assigned to them and will themselves be divided into four groups of six, each working with a resource person. The four resource persons will be Corigliano, Dr. Ann Hasting, Patrick Lennahan, and Francis Patnode. This special group of advisors will be encouraged to meet with their advisees at least once before and once after each course selection period in order to assist them with any special problems they might be having. Corigliano said that approximately 200 of the incoming freshmen class have yet to choose a major. Faculty involved in the project include Dr. James Armstrong, Leith Bardon, Lois Beach, Dr. Donald Bogucki, Dr. Robert I. ## SPORTS UPDATE; WOMEN'S SOCCER TEAM SCORES THREE MORE WINS

The women's soccer team took a big step toward post-season play with three wins last week. The Cards shut out St. Michael's, 4-0, Sept. 27, edged rival St. Lawrence Friday, 2-1, and on Sunday afternoon Sue Viscomi's crew whitewashed Clarkson, 4-0. The team's record is 6-1 with six games remaining.

The volleyball team lost its first match Friday night at St. Lawrence. The women had won six straight, including a come-from-behind win over Potsdam State Sept. 27, 14-16, 12-15, 15-4, 15-1, 15-11. Plattsburgh natives Shelly Everleth and Seena Ferrara have been contributing outstanding play for the 6-1 Cardinals.

The Cardinal runners ran into tough competition Saturday at the LeMoyne Invitational. The women, behind Lisa McDougall's and Maureen McCoy's 13th and 14th place finishes took fourth in the 10-team women's field. The men did not fare as well, taking ninth out of 18 teams in the men's race. Dean Diltz grabbed 23rd place for the Cards.

Victories over St. Michael's and Trinity College moved the women's tennis team to 3-3 with five matches left in the season. Julie Weinstein, Missy Penfield, Kelly Penfield and Diane Heyde each contributed to the victories.

Fred Hooper continues to wonder what it takes to win, as the Cardinal men's soccer team lost, 2-1, to St. Lawrence, Sept. 28 in Canton, and 5-0 to Cortland State, Saturday in Cortland. The Cards drop to 0-3 in SUNYAC play and 1-6 overall.

NIH CONTINUES TO FUND MOORE'S RESEARCH

The National Institute of Health has awarded Dr. Richard Moore another $98,487 in support of his continued research into "The Role of the Sodium Pump and Acidity in Cellular Action of Insulin." NIH has supported Moore's work since the mid-1960's. This latest award brings Moore's support from the agency to approximately $450,000. The primary objective to Moore's long-term investigation is to further explain the mechanism by which insulin exerts its effect on muscle cells. Moore's research team includes a post-doctoral research associate, a research technician, graduate students and undergraduates. In addition to personnel support, the grant covers expenses for the purchase of equipment, for supplies, books and journals, for expenses of visiting scientists, and for travel in the United States and abroad. Moore is a professor of biophysics and has been a member of the College faculty since 1964. In addition to his NIH grant, Moore is conducting further research through a grant from the American Heart Association.

HOME ECONOMICS HONOR SOCIETY WINS RECOGNITION AWARD FOR PROJECT

Beta Epsilon, the campus chapter of Phi Upsilon Omicron, the national home economics honor society, was recently awarded the District I National Recognition Award for excellence in the facilitation of its 1983 professional project, entitled "Helping the Community." Dr. Marty Frost, one of the chapter's advisors, explained that the annual project is the major professional activity undertaken by the approximately 90 local chapters.

Frost said the local chapter, which has 25 members, planned, organized and carried out a campus and community-wide food and clothing drive. Project participants solicited 16 cases of food and a cash donation from local supermarkets and then conducted a door-to-door drive in the local community which netted 268 food items. They also placed collection boxes for clothing donations in the dormitories and the home economics office and received substantial numbers of clothing items. Both food and clothing were contributed to the Joint Council for Economic Opportunity, which operates a county-wide food shelf. In addition to this project, chapter members assisted with the CROP walk last spring, helping to organize it and recruit walkers.

HARRINGTON HALL TAKES CARE OF ITS OWN

Students in Harrington Hall last week showed their hearts are in the right place. The husband of Mary Walker, a building service aide in that residence hall, was scheduled for open-heart surgery in Houston, Texas. Insurance covered the surgery and their trip south, but did not cover air fare home. Learning of the couple's predicament, resident assistant Rod Forey decided some student help was in order. During the next forty-five minutes, one hundred thirty of the Harrington Hall residents were asked to dig into their pockets. They responded by contributing about $150 for the Walkers to solve the problem. The latest word is that Mr. Walker is doing fine after his surgery.

MALANCHUK NAMED TO NATIONAL TASK FORCE ON ACID RAIN

Dr. John Malanchuk, professor in the Center for Earth and Environmental Science, has been named to a staff position on the Inter-Agency Task Force on Acid Deposition. Malanchuk explained that the task force has been developed and is supported by various government agencies, including the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service, the National Park Service, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the U.S. Geological Survey, the Department of Energy, the Tennessee Valley Authority and the National Science Foundation. "The whole question of acid rain has become so important that it is a major priority of government agencies," Malanchuk said. The task force's mission is fourfold, to assess current damage due to acid deposition, to evaluate source/receptor relationships, to discuss the range of policy options, and to identify future research. Malanchuk said the task force intends to produce a document responding to these goals by 1985, but long-term assessment will continue through 1989. Malanchuk will leave in January for Washington, D.C., where he will spend the next 20 months, on leave from the College, working on the project.

FACULTY SENATE APPROVES COLLEGE OBJECTIVES AND MISSION STATEMENT

COLLEGE FOUNDATION AIDS OVER 400 STUDENTS

More than 400 students have received scholarship assistance this year from the Plattsburgh College Foundation, up from approximately 350 last year. Financial Aid Director Suzanne Sokolowski said this week that awards to students range from $100 to $1,350, based on their demonstrated financial need. The total amount of scholarship money given this year is up about $90,000 over last year, due largely to the success of the most recent annual giving campaign and a high yield from the Foundation's investment of its endowment funds. Foundation Executive Director Don Garratt commented, that while it is very satisfying to be able to meet the needs of so many students, there are many more students who have demonstrated financial need, and increased efforts by the Foundation are needed.

SPRING SURVEY SHOWS IMPROVEMENT IN ACADEMIC ADVISING

The advising questionnaire completed by students last spring shows an improvement in student satisfaction with academic advising. Director of Academic Advisement Tom Corigliano said this week that the mean for every question on the survey is higher for spring than for fall '83. Students were asked to respond to the 20-question survey, which was located on the back of their registration cards, following their meeting(s) with advisors and the course selection progress. Corigliano said 1,465 students responded or 40% of those students who registered in the spring. Students particularly complimented advisors on their availability and on their concerned attitudes. The results of the survey have been distributed to department chairs and program directors. In addition, faculty members have each received an individual report if more than five of their advisees responded. Corigliano has offered to meet with individuals or with departments to discuss the results of the survey.

GORE TO HELP DRAFT REPORT ON PESTICIDES IN IMPORTED FOOD

Dr. Peter Gore, professor in the Center for Earth and Environmental Science, has been appointed to a 17-member national task force by the Council for Agricultural Science and Technology, with the responsibility of producing a report on the impact of pesticides on imported foods. The task force may also study the impact of pesticides on domestic food production. The Council is composed of 25 professional societies related to agriculture. Gore is the representative from the Rural Sociological Society.

Gore explained that the task force has been formed in reaction to developing concerns about the presence of pesticides and growth-regulating chemicals in imported food, since many other countries have few, if any, regulations about the use of those chemicals in food production.

The Cards defeated Clarkson in straight games on Wednesday, then traveled to Oswego State for victories over Oswego State and Houghton College. The women improved their record to 15-4, heading into the Potsdam State Tournament this weekend.

Sue Viscomi's squad ran into problems on the road last week, losing 2-0 to Albany State and 2-1 Ithaca College. The women booters did manage a 4-0 win over McGill University; however, the team's number five State ranking will go by the boards, as their record drops to 9-3.

The men's soccer team lost a tough exhibition, 2-1, to defending Canadian National Champion McGill University. A McGill attacker scored with less than a minute to go in regulation time to give the Redmen the win. Union College proved an unwelcoming host Saturday blasting the Cards 3-1 and ending a slim chance of post-season play. Plattsburgh State's record falls to 4-7-1.

MAISON FRANCAISE ESTABLISHED ON CAMPUS; 1ST IN SUNY SYSTEM

A Maison Francaise has been established on the Plattsburgh campus, and, according to its director, Dr. Caren Steinlight, it's the only one in the State University system. The approximately 400 students currently enrolled in French courses may go to the language house to attend language workshops; receive tutoring and extra reading practice; listen to records, tapes and radio programs; read newspapers, magazines, and books; watch Quebec television; and just speak in French. Organized activities, including pronunciation workshops, translation workshops, specialized vocabulary workshops, musical and dramatic events, contests, speakers, debates, field trips, and a French newsletter and journal, are also being planned.

Steinlight commented that the Maison Francaise, like its well-known counterparts at Columbia and N.Y.U., "will allow students to reinforce their language skills in a congenial and exciting atmosphere and will help make their language learning more effective and rewarding."

FALL TO FALL RETENTION RATE CLIMBS 2%

Enrollment figures for the Fall, 1983 semester indicate that the percentage of full-time undergraduate students enrolled in the Fall of 1982 who were eligible to and did return to the college rose to 85%. Jan Edwards, acting director of admissions, released the figures saying, "This represents a 2% increase over the Fall, 1981 to Fall, 1982 return rate of 83%." More specific data concerning the return rate of students by class level and academic program will be forthcoming as will indicators of graduation rates, as the college continues to monitor and make efforts to improve the rate of student retention.

Those efforts to improve the retention rate were outlined in a recent mailing to faculty and staff, Edwards commented, noting that many parts of the plan for improving retention have been implemented. The report listed nearly 20 steps that have been taken on campus to improve the quality of life on the Plattsburgh campus and to meet the legitimate educational needs of students.

Edwards also commented that members of the Retention Network Executive Committee are interested in receiving "comments, questions and constructive criticism" from faculty and staff.

ALUMNI PHONOTHON TOPS GOAL WITH OUT-OF-STATE CALLS STILL TO BE MADE

The annual alumni phonothon has surpassed its goal of $25,000 by more than 20% with all out-of-state calls yet to be made. Alumni Affairs Director Mal Lavery said Monday that as of the end of last week, 2,216 alumni had pledged $30,239 to the campaign. Of those who made pledges, 1,644 were first-time donors to the alumni fund. Calls to New York State alumni are now complete, Lavery said. Calls will be made to out-of-state alumni early next week, he added. Harris Graphics in Champlain has made arrangements to allow the student volunteers to use their telephone lines to complete those out-of-state calls.

Lavery complimented the student volunteers on their continuing enthusiasm for the project. "Without these students," he said, "this entire project would be impossible. It's amazing how their enthusiasm generates a similar response in our alumni, many of whom have not visited the campus since their graduation years ago."

The money generated by the annual phonothon goes into a scholarship fund which supports needy students on the Plattsburgh campus.

FORENSIC TEAM WINS SUFFOLK U. TOURNEY; SADLER SETS PENTATHLON RECORD

SUNY REQUESTS 1984-85 BUDGET OF $23,347,000

The State University of New York has submitted its 1984-85 budget request to the Governor's Office, and within that total SUNY budget is a request for $23,347,000 for Plattsburgh State. That figure, said President Joseph C. Burke, represents an increase of $1,677,900 over this year's budget. Burke made some comparisons with the college's 1973-74 budget, commenting that, ten years ago, the college's budget totalled $12,097,000, and explaining that if the two figures are compared in terms of the 1973 dollar value, the college has actually had its budget cut by 20.5%. Burke added that, in 1973, the college employed 838 faculty and support staff. This fall that number has dropped to 712, a decrease of 14.9%. Burke explained further that in order to preserve its essential academic programs, the college has absorbed the funding and staffing reductions primarily in non-instructional areas. Most colleges and universities, Burke said, devote less than half of their budgets to instruction, while Plattsburgh State spends 56.1% of its budget in instructional areas.

Burke commented that the college's priorities over the next few years include the separation of academic and administrative computing, the development of a writing-across-the-curriculum program, the development of an academic honors program, the addition of a criminal justice degree program and the continued development of the academic centers.

REFERENDUM TO CHANGE STUDENT ASSOCIATION ELECTION PROCESS FAILS

A referendum to change the Student Association election process failed to attract a minimum of 10 percent of the eligible SA voters on Monday, causing the referendum to be ruled void. A total of 361 SA members voted, with 286 voting in favor and 75 opposed. A minimum of 540 SA members was needed to validate the proposal.

The referendum would have established election districts for SA Senate seats, instead of at large seats. The size of the Senate would have increased from 15 to 31 seats and the date of the Senate elections would have moved from December to September.

SA elections will be held as usual on Tuesday, December 6, with all positions up for election.

FACULTY SENATE APPROVES 3/2 COMPUTER SCIENCE/ENGINEERING AND HONORS PROGRAMS

At its last regular meeting, the Faculty Senate approved a motion to adopt a 3/2 Computer Science/Engineering program, as submitted. However, an amendment was added to the motion calling for the undergraduate studies committee to look into the issue of specifying General Education courses as part of specific programs.

In addition, the Faculty Senate reviewed the Proposal for Honors Study prepared by the Honors Planning Committee. After discussion, the Senate approved a motion to establish a two-tier honors program using the submitted proposal as a guideline. It is to be coordinated by an Honors Council and headed by a Director. The Honors Council is to report to the Faculty Senate on an annual basis on the accomplishments of the program and the criteria used for the program. The two-tier program divides the honors program into General Honors and Advanced Honors. The General Honors program is intended to occur during the first four semesters of a student's college career and will consist primarily of specially designed seminars or courses or specially designated honors sections of existing courses. Students will be expected to complete six such honors courses during these four semesters. The Advanced Honors Program will ordinarily occur within disciplinary or interdisciplinary programs as they exist at Plattsburgh and departments, centers, and programs will be responsible for developing opportunities for Advanced Honors as appropriate within their area. Students will participate in the Advanced Honors Program during their last four semesters. The complete honors program proposal is available from Dr. David Mowry.

OUR GOAL

SEFA CAMPAIGN AT 30% OF GOAL

The campus portion of the State Employees Federated Appeal has received $6,159 in contributions and pledges, according to campus chairperson Jim King. King said that figure represents approximately 30% of the campus goal of $20,000. To date, most of the college's administrative offices have turned in their pledges and donations, but few of the academic departments have reported their totals. The following offices have reported 100% participation from their employees: Associate Vice President's Office, Personnel, Technical Assistance Center, Duplicating, Office of Assistant Vice President for Finance and Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs. Other offices reporting high participation figures include: Accounting (89%), Analytical Studies, Student Affairs, Facilities Planning and Upward Bound, (all at 80%), and Media Services (75%). King said that if the current rate of participation continues, the goal will easily be met. King also commented that many more people were designating their gift to particular agencies this year, noting that this year's pledge card makes that much easier.

The SEFA campaign is a joint effort that benefits the sixteen member agencies of the local United Way, the nine members of the Clinton County National Health Agencies, and the fourteen international agencies that belong to the International Services Agencies.

WORKS BY NEW YORK CRAFT ARTISTS TO BE DISPLAYED IN MYERS GALLERY

In addition, works by David Brickman, a young photographer from the Albany area, will be exhibited in the Rockwell Kent Gallery Alcove.

COLLEGE CENTER TO BE NAMED FOR FORMER PRESIDENT GEORGE W. ANGELL

The State University of New York Board of Trustees has unanimously approved the naming of the Plattsburgh State College Center in honor of Dr. George W. Angell, who was president of the College from 1954 to 1974. The suggestion to name the facility was formulated by current President Joseph C. Burke, Mrs. Judith L. Duken '59, a former member of the College Council and the first SUNY alumnus to be named to the University's Board of Trustees, and Louis Wolfe, Plattsburgh attorney and chair of the College Council. It won the unanimous approval of the Council and was presented to the trustees personally by Mrs. Duken.

Burke commented, "We're delighted that the Trustees have agreed to name the building for Dr. Angell, whose name is synonymous with the rapid development of the College, in both qualitative and quantitative terms, from 1954 to 1974. George Angell guided the growth of the College from a single-purpose institution to a modern university college enrolling nearly five thousand students. At the same time, he strengthened the quality of its faculty and academic programs, improved its capacity for self-governance, and encouraged new kinds of college-community relationships. Through all of this, his first concern was for the students at Plattsburgh. It is fitting that the college center building should bear the name of a person whose vision and commitment have meant so much to this College."

The College Center, designed by the award-winning architectural firm Mitchell and Giurgola Associates and occupied in 1974, is a central gathering place on campus for faculty and students alike. The building contains dining facilities, student government offices, a large ballroom or banquet facility, the offices of the student newspaper, the Campus Life Office, two large lounges, and various meeting rooms. Used daily by several thousand students, the building is also visited often by members of the community who attend many of the public events scheduled in the center.

Angell came to Plattsburgh in 1954 from New Paltz Teachers College where he held the position of dean and served as acting president. During his tenure at Plattsburgh, he was instrumental in bringing educational television to the area and also proposed the creation of what later became the Technical Assistance Center. In 1974, the year of his retirement, he received the College's Distinguished Service Award, the highest honor the College can bestow.

Official dedication ceremonies will be held at a later date.

ROBERT BURTON NAMED BLINKEN FELLOW

Robert Burton, director of libraries, has been selected to receive a Donald M. Blinken Academic Administrative Fellowship for the spring semester. Named in honor of the chairman of the State University Board of Trustees, the Blinken Fellowship was inaugurated as a way of identifying and providing experience to persons on the various SUNY campuses who are deemed especially promising for, and interested in, possible future careers in administration. The Fellowship provides an opportunity for the recipient to participate in activities in the central administration and to carry out a study project related to administrative problems.

Burton will spend the spring semester in Albany primarily conducting a study of the "Factors and Analysis Which Describe Library Use Within the Libraries of the State University of New York." The broad objective of his proposal is "to further the development of a management information system for the libraries within SUNY."

Burton has been director of libraries at Plattsburgh since 1976. Prior to coming to Plattsburgh, he was assistant director for public services at the SUNY Buffalo libraries. He holds a bachelor's degree and an A.M.L.S. from the University of Michigan.

WRITING ACROSS THE CURRICULUM COMMITTEE APPOINTED

A fourteen-member Ad Hoc Committee on Writing-Across-the-Curriculum has been appointed by President Joseph C. Burke. Chaired by Dr. Thomas J. Morrissey, associate professor of English, the committee is charged with drafting a proposal for an interdisciplinary writing requirement for Plattsburgh students. Such a requirement was one of the goals cited in the President's address to the faculty at the start of the 1983-84 school year. The principle underlying writing across the curriculum is that responsibility for helping students learn to write better should not lie solely with English instructors, but should be shared by faculty in other disciplines. Programs that embody this principle have been adopted by quite a few colleges and universities.

Any plan devised by the committee must be approved by the Faculty Senate before becoming effective.

PSUC TO PARTICIPATE IN $15 MILLION SUNY/INDONESIA EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM

Plattsburgh State is one of fifteen State University of New York units which will participate in a four-year project, expected to cost more than $15 million, to increase and improve the training of teachers in Indonesia as part of a large-scale educational reform program. Indonesia's Ministry of Education and Culture notified SUNY that it was chosen from among seven bidding agencies and universities to conduct the training and technical assistance project. Other SUNY units involved are the University Centers at Albany, Binghamton, Buffalo and Stony Brook; and the Arts and Science Colleges at Brockport, Buffalo, Cortland, Fredonia, Geneseo, New Paltz, Old Westbury, Oneonta, and Oswego; and the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell.

Due to get underway in January, the World Bank-supported project will rely heavily on SUNY's experience in teacher education and educational planning, providing both master's and doctorate level education to Indonesian students at SUNY campuses in a variety of fields. Many of the more than 300 participating students will spend considerable time observing students in classroom situations in schools throughout New York State. In addition, a number of SUNY specialists will go to Indonesia for periods of up to two years to advise on technical problems and provide on-site professional expertise.

Dr. Nicholas Troisi, dean of professional studies, is the campus coordinator for the project. Troisi said this week that plans as to how each campus will participate have not been finalized, but it is likely that a number of Indonesian students will come to Plattsburgh for master's degree level work. He added that various faculty members may have an opportunity to be part of the technical assistance group that will go to Indonesia.

ALUMNI PHONOTHON CLOSES WITH PLEDGES OF MORE THAN $34,000; 36% OVER GOAL

The 1983 Annual Alumni Phonothon has come to a close, with gifts and pledges totalling $34,069, which is more than 36% over the goal of $25,000. Alumni Affairs Director Mal Lavery said that a total of 2,469 alumni pledged contributions to the fund. Of that number, 1,809 are donating to the alumni fund for the first time. Money collected through the phonothon is used for student scholarships.

Lavery praised the 45 students who made the telephone calls during the two-month campaign. "I can't speak highly enough of those students who gave so much of their free time to this project," he said. "The phonothon simply could not be carried out without these student volunteers, who have worked so hard to raise money to help their fellow students continue their college education."

SEARCH FOR PERSONNEL DIRECTOR REOPENED; MOLL NAMED ACTING DIRECTOR

The search for a personnel director, which began last summer, has been reopened, according to Derek Allan, chairperson of the search committee. Members of the committee, in addition to Allan, are Steve Adams, Patty Bentley, Jan Edwards, Beverly Forrester, Diana Green, Dr. Hough Liu, Thomas Moran, Dr. Nicholas Troisi, William Woltjen, and Patricia Wood.

Robert Moll, assistant to the dean of arts and science, has been appointed acting personnel director, effective January 1.

NUMBER OF FOREIGN STUDENTS UP SLIGHTLY; CHANGES SEEN IN GEOGRAPHIC DISTRIBUTION

There are 111 foreign students at Plattsburgh State, up from 107 last year, according to Jaimie Trautman, foreign student advisor. Trautman said the 111 students come from 29 different countries, and added that 43 are new this year to the college. The largest number of students (34) come from Canada, with Nigeria (12) and England (11) running a distant second and third. Nine come from Malaysia; seven from Hong Kong; four from Japan; three each from Iran, Kenya, and Lebanon; two each from Chile, India, Jamaica, Jordan, and Liberia; and one each from Cameroon, Cayman, W.I., China, El Salvador, Greece, Guyana, Ireland, Korea, Pakistan, Panama, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Sri Lanka, Taiwan, and Trinidad.

The most popular major, said Trautman, is business, with 24 foreign students, followed by computer science with 17. Other foreign students are enrolled in 23 different majors.

Trautman has also compiled information as to the geographic distribution of Plattsburgh's foreign students over the past three years. She said that the numbers of African, European, North American, and Latin American students have remained quite stable, but noted that the number of Arab students has declined by 50%, while the number of Asian students has more than doubled.

GEOGRAPHIC DISTRIBUTION

FROST AND RITTY AWARDED $6,000 FOR PROJECT ON SCHOOLS AND SINGLE-PARENT FAMILIES

Drs. Martha Frost and Michael Ritty, assistant professors in the Center for Human Resources and the Center for Teacher Education, respectively, have received $6,000 to continue their work on schools and single-parent families. Frost explained that the money came from three sources. The local United Way contributed $1,000; $2,000 was received from the Frederick W. Richmond Foundation of New York City; and the Clinton County Youth Bureau matched those contributions with an additional $3,000. Frost and Ritty have been working in this area for some time, and Frost explained that this particular grant is aimed at working with local school districts to help the administrators and school personnel understand and deal more effectively with the concerns of single parent families. A part of the program will be day-long workshops for teachers, other school personnel and parents from the Plattsburgh City School District and several local parochial schools.

Spissinger said that, although the number of grants submitted during the two-month period was greater during 1982, the amount of money requested from various grantors was significantly higher in 1983. During the two-month period, $343,467 was requested in 1982, while in 1983, grant applications amounted to $582,634. This year's grants were filed with various agencies, including the National Institute of Health, the American Heart Association, the American Chemical Society, the National Endowment for the Humanities, the National Endowment for the Arts, Exxon Corporation, the U.S. Department of Education, the U.S. Air Force, and the SUNY Research Foundation.

A new student organization has been formed on campus. ## STUDENT TO DELIVER COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS TO 350 GRADUATES

Senior Roger Sadler, a communications major from Gouverneur, NY, will deliver the commencement address during the annual winter commencement exercises to be held at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, December 21. Sadler, the first student to be selected to deliver the commencement address, is a member of the college's Forensic Union and holds numerous individual events and pentathlon titles in the Northeast.

Approximately 350 graduates will receive degrees during the ceremony. Registrar Dorothy Jackstadt said that about 325 will receive bachelor's degrees, while an additional 25 will receive master's degrees or certificates of advanced study.

This year, the ceremony will be held in Memorial Hall in order to accommodate the large number of people expected to attend the ceremony. Following the ceremony, a reception for the graduates, their relatives and friends will be held in the ballroom of the George W. Angell College Center. Members of the faculty are invited to attend both the ceremony and the reception.

Three students are expected to graduate summa cum laude (with highest honors). They are Lois Ballard, Holly Merryman, and Kathryn Worthington. Seven students are expected to receive their degrees magna cum laude (with high honors), including Suanne Delisle, Timothy Doherty, Susan Dunn, Jill Dewson, Mary Kauffman, Dona Waszczak, and Deborah Yokum. In addition, the following students are expected to receive degrees cum laude (with honor): Lee Bautz, Deborah Cardone, Denise Cronkhite, Maureen Eldridge, Heather Evans, Diana Formisano, Richard Germain, Jennifer Groseth, Pamela Hepinstall, Marla Howell, Bonnie Laudig, Pamela Loneragan, Kathryn McCloskey, Thomas Nulty, Jr., Susan O'Connor, Ingrid Olsen, John O'Neil, Laurie Pryme, Karen Richards, Patricia Scally, Colleen Smith, Michelle Snyder, Jolynn Sperling, Ann White, and Thomas Wright.

SEFA CAMPAIGN 20% OVER GOAL

The campus division of the State Employees Federated Appeal has received contributions and pledges of $24,397.54, according to chairperson Jim King, who announced the final report of the fund drive on Tuesday. King said that this figure is nearly 22% above the goal of $20,000. "We're very pleased at the increased level of participation this year," King said, "as well as with the amount that has been pledged and contributed." King said that the SEFA campaign, held for the first time this year on the campus, had separated from the college drive several offices and groups that traditionally had been very supportive of the United Way, but he added that the rest of the college had responded even more positively than in the past.

COMMUNITY MENTOR ADVISORY COMMITTEE FORMED

Following Faculty Senate passage of the Honors Program in November, implementation of various aspects of the program are proceeding. One portion of the Honors Proposal calls for the establishment of a Community Mentor Program as part of the Honors Program. Dr. David Mowry, who is presently in charge of the Honors Program, commented that the motivation behind the Community Mentor Program is that "there are many people in the North Country community who, by virtue of their educational background, professional skill or community commitment, represent an important resource for students in the Honors Program." The Community Mentor Planning Committee, Mowry said, will work closely with potential honors students, and will develop guidelines which will serve as a basis for inviting additional people to participate in the program. The committee is considering contact between individual mentors and individual students as well as group discussions and symposia. Members of the Planning Committee are: Caroline Allen, retail advertising manager of the Press Republican; Dr. Peter Angelos, surgeon; Chris Catsimanes, engineer at the Bindery Systems Division of Harris Graphics; Robert Harsh, director of the Crisis Center; Janet Duprey, Clinton County legislator; and Rev. Daniel Keefe, pastor of the Newman Center.

FACULTY INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE TO FOUNDATION'S ANNUAL GIVING PROGRAM

The College Foundation has invited members of the faculty to participate in the Foundation's 1983 annual giving campaign. Foundation President E. Glenn Giltz, in a letter mailed Tuesday, encouraged faculty to contribute to the annual fund drive. Giltz said that the Foundation provided $250,000 in scholarships and grants to needy students this year, and is committed to providing $275,000 next year. He said, "Not only student scholarships, but also opportunities for faculty and student travel, library resources, equipment and research, are affected by how successful we are in meeting our fund-raising goals. My primary concern is that, without ever-increasing private support, many valuable programs and projects may have to be curtailed or eliminated, and many deserving students — your students — may have to abandon their educational objectives or enroll somewhere else closer to home."

Giltz said that some members of the faculty have already made pledges or contributions to the Foundation and expressed his appreciation for those gifts. He noted that the percentage of participation is as important as the amount of the gift and encouraged faculty to respond by December 31. Gifts may be earmarked for student scholarships, library books or periodicals, student travel to national and international conferences, or student research.

The Luzerne tournament was the team's last one for this semester.

PSUC STUDENTS RECRUITING PROSPECTIVE STUDENTS AT OWN HIGH SCHOOLS

One hundred thirty-one Plattsburgh State students are participating in the peer recruitment program this year, according to Assistant Director of Admissions Rich Higgins. Higgins said that the peer recruiters visit high schools in their home communities during vacation periods and talk to prospective students about college life in general and life at Plattsburgh State in particular. During the Thanksgiving recess, the students, individually and in groups, visited 59 high schools and talked to 291 high school students. Higgins said that 27 additional schools will be visited by the peer recruiters during the break between semesters. Higgins said that the response to the program has been very positive by the students involved, the guidance counselors at the high schools visited, and by the high school students as well. The 131 volunteers, he added, represent all four class levels and all major courses of study.

CARDINAL BOOSTER CLUB SURPASSES '83 GOAL

A year ago the club raised $1,765 with gifts from 51 contributors.

The Booster Club, an affiliate of both the Plattsburgh College Foundation and the Alumni Association, is an organization of alumni, faculty and staff, businesses and other friends of the College who "share a commitment to fostering excellence in intercollegiate athletics at Plattsburgh State." Cardinal Boosters make a tax deductible contribution annually of a minimum of $25. Its funds are used to support projects and programs not provided for by the annual student activities assessment. The organization agreed recently to sponsor alumni vs. alumni contests in February in men's hockey and basketball, and this spring will again sponsor an awards program recognizing the achievements of the college's men and women athletes.

Scott's ball skills and aggressive play have also placed him on the State University of New York Athletic Conference First team and the New York State Division III College second team.
